WILL FIGHT ABOVE CLOUDS

Experts Believe Future Wars Will Be Largely Decided by Conflicts in the Air.

Control of the seas has been the dominant factor in this war. Britain's naval supremacy gives her a grip upon the destinies of all nations. Claude Graham-White and Harry Harper, writing in the Fortnightly Review upon "Two Years of Aerial War," predict that in coming wars the control of the air will be even more essential than control of the seas. In the "push" of the allies on the western front the superiority of their air reconnoissance gives them great advantage. However, it is the growing effectiveness of the airplane as a fighting machine, carrying death and destruction to the enemy, that is the most significant development of the war. Messrs White and Harper predict that in future wars it will be the "great fighting airplanes, the machines for destroying bostile craft, or for laying waste land posttions, which will be to the forefront," the scouting airplane playing a minor part in the general scheme.

In all defensive plans the United States has placed great reliance on its isolation. Our isolation may always have in it some measure of protection, but our long coast line, facing two having a speed of 20 miles an hour or more. Nations may go down to defeat by aircraft attack which in a few hours could Mopelessly cripple the nation not ready to defend itself in the air. It is argued that Great Britain, if she is to maintain her empire, must match by control of the air the control she maily high level this year, though the now has of the seas. But what of the annual floods form part and parcel of coastline and our outlying possessions?

Glenn Pharaohs gets beyond control. L. Martin, one of the pioneer aviators and constructors of this country, says: "In developing flying we have outdone the birds, and this is only the beginning." Mr. Martin is also authority for the statement that there is no means of transportation yet devised that will make 60 miles an hour as safely as an airplane,-Charlton Bates Strayer in Leslie's.

Gasoline Field Kitchen.

Among the useful and interesting devices of which the origin is directly traceable to the war, says a contemporary, the automobile field kitchen is one that is made necessary by the swiftness with which armies in the field are transported and by the promptness with which these armies the most complete kind, is revealed.

Four high-pressure burners furnish the heat; cleverly concealed pumps force water from the 50-gallon tank in front of the car to the enameled sink in the kitchen; and a variety of utensils, such as jugs, plates, ment-choppers and fish-slicers are provided for the rapid and clean preparation of food. Like most modern kitchens, too, this one bonsts of ventilators, both at the sides and in the roof of the car. Indeed, it would seem as if the English firm which invented this motor-kitchen simply made a practical, miniature edition of a most approved and modern type of hotel kitchen.

Last Auroch Gone.

The ancestors of our horned cattle the Aurochs, whose last two principal herds were kept in the forest of Bielo-·leja, between Bielostock and Brest-Litovsk, and on the estate of Count Potocki, in Volhynia, have gone out of existence. In both places the war raged with great violence in 1914-15. Some of the animals died from hunger, others were struck by the German shells. Thus, an animal species which has been with us since the quarternary period, has been extinguished.

Signs of Danger.

That Should Be Heeded by Hondo

There's serious danger in neglecting ony weakness of the kidneys. The warning that Nature gives should not be overlooked. If troubled by too frequent passage of the kidney secretions; burning or scalding; if the secretions are highly colored and contain sediment when left standing-if you have backache, too, with frequent headaches and dizziness, make up your mind that your kidneys are afrected and begin using some reliable kidney remedy. Deaths from kidney disease have increased in the United States alone, 72 per cent in the last 20 years. The risk is great-you can't afford to delay. Hondo people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Can you ask for better proof of merit than the statement of this Hondo resident?

Mrs. X. Wantz, Hondo, says: "My kidneys were disordered for sometime. I had a dull, bearing-down pain in the small of my back and it hurt me to stoop or straighten. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Martin Drug Co., gave me relief right away and did me a lot of good."

Shake Off That Grip

When Spring comes, with its changeable weather and your exposure, it is best to clear away all the symptoms left after an attack of grip. There's Danger in Delay

Wonderful Transformation of Fill Islanders, Which Are Soon to Be Visited by Roosevelt.

When Colonel Roosevelt pays his announced visit to the Fiji islands in February he will find the natives much different from what they were only a comparatively short time ago. Today the Fiji Islanders are model citizens; once they were the most abhorrent creatures known to civilization.

In his work, "How Christ Conquered Fiji." Rev. D. L. Leonard tells us something of the Fijians of a generation or two ago. He says:

"Physically and intellectually they rank among the foremost in the South seas, but before Christianity wrought its astounding miracles of transformation they had no equals for brutality, and utter disregard for was a synonym for all that is atrocious, inhuman and demoniacal. It was a part of their religion to be as cruel as possible toward their enemies and to slay them with nameless and horrible torture was a positive de-

"They had a habit of massacring all shipwrecked sailors or other strange visitors to their shores. Few Fijians died a natural death or fived to old age, for the Teable and the aged were esteemed worse that useless mentbers of society and by artificial means were hastened to their graves. Infanticide was so common that twothirds of the children perished at the hands of their parents.

"When a chief built a house and holes were dug for the posts a man was flung into each one to be buried alive. When a war canoe was launched living men were used for human rollers, and their bruised and torn bodies were afterward roasted and eaten. Human flesh was eaten by preference, as well as from hatred of their enemies slain in battle. In one district the entire population was kept to be devoured by their more powerful neighbors. A chief would send to a neighbor or ally a roasted victim carefully wrapped and escorted by a procession. After one war the victory was celebrated by cooking 100 human bodies for a feast. One chief set up a stone to commemorate each time he had played the cannibal, and 872 of these tokens were counted by a missionary,

But the Fijians have since passed under the mild yoke of Christianity and the savage in them has yielded to the subduing influences of the Gospel of mercy and peace.

ORATOR'S DECLINE AND FALL

"Spellbinder" Now Simply Makes the Voters Tired, and They Will Not Have Him.

The campaign curtain has been rung down, says the Kansas City Star, on no sadder fact-from some points of view, at least-than that the stump orator has not lived up to his old-time tradition. Or if he has fived up to it the public has declined to live up to it with him. Not to evade the fact, or to attempt to soften it, the intelligent electorate, the free American voter, or whatever else the citizenry is called in presidential years, has yawned openly in the face of the spellbinder and turned away to see what was on at the movie show.

It has been a shock to the political managers. The campaign industry has had no such setback since the introduction of reading into the scheme of popular education. It used to be that anyhody who had ever been a member of the legislature, who had sat on the bench, held a county office or had done or was supposed to have done anything that would serve as an excuse for prefixing the title of "Hon." to his name-it used to be that any such male person with well-developed lungs and a set of gestures could be billed in a political campaign and bring out the entire countryside. About all such an orator needed, in addition to the title alluded to, was a "statesman" cont, an untiring voice, a string of statistics and what was known as a "fund" of anecdote. This "fund" was generally overdrawn at the bank of originality and most of the drafts on it went to ignominious protest. The "intelligent audience"-the most Intelligent audlence the old-time orator ever had the pleasure of addressing-has taken him at his word and has rather distanced him in intelligence and information on his own subject. It has come to be more and more like the audience at the theater which has paid for its seats-it demands the best or will go elsewhere to find it. The mere "Hons" no longer draw. Unless a topliner is produced the intelligent audience shows its intelligence by staying away from the

It is only fair to say that the intelligent campaign manager has kept pace with the intelligent audience. He was quick with the book when he saw the second-rate oratory stuff was beginning to pall. That is why printer's ink has so enormously increased in use in this campaign. These astute gentlemen have discovered that the Intelligent audience takes the paper at home. The "and now my friends" orators never saw a sadder day than when they discovered it.

Sight Affected by Paper.

A committee of the British association has been conducting an investigation of the influence of school books on the sight, especially that of children. The glossiness of the paper was found to be an important matter. This glossiness depends mainly on specular reflection, i. e., reflection similar to from polished metals. Such re- For every step of progress won, flection is apt to interfere with binocular vision. Scattered or diffuse refection, as from a fine white powder, is not be entirely avoided in paper, but it is not injurious to vision unless excessive. When the specular reflection exceeds 56 per cent, the resultant glare is likely to be harmful. Writing paper for school use should not give more than 54 per cent specular reflection at an angle of 45 degrees, since young writers often look obliquely at the paper. Colored maps can be produced without extra expense or difficulty on paper conforming to the committee's recommendations. In some cases the effect of using suitable paper is spoiled by the use of glaze in the colors of inks.

Seek Fabric to Replace Cotton.

Since the cotton supply of Austria-Hungary has been practically shut off by the blockade, scientists and manufacturers have co-operated in devising a paper fabric to replace it. A number of varieties of paper fabric are now in actual service. Some of them have a warp of paper yarn and include a mixture of cotton and paper in the filling. Others are composed of paper alone. Turkish cotton, which has ordinarily been considered too poor to weave into cloth, is utilized in this paper fabric, as is also nettle fiber, which has been found to possess great possibilities as a cotton substitute. Old rags are being converted into a paper fabric used for many of the purposes for which cotton cloth is now used. Chemical processes have toughened and strengthened the paper fabric so as to increase its de-

Approval.

"In some parts of the world it is customary for women to smoke cigars." "It's a good idea," commented Mr. Growcher. "It's some protection to the man whose wife buys him a box of cigars for Christmas."

Toilet of the Lion.

At Belfort the lion of Bartholdy is nobler and prouder than ever. Above all he is proud to be clean and tidy. For some time he was a very dirty lion. The garrison that occupied the fort just above the monument had thrown down upon the stony animal kitchen slops, old rags and all kinds of filth. One day it was announced that the prince of Wales would visit Belfort on the following day. The men on police duty were ordered to clean up against an unforeseen difficulty. The approach to the lion was by a narrow passage in the rock of which the entrance was closed by a strong door, and the keeper of the key had been mobilized and gone. Fortunately among the men on police duty was a black sheep who had a reputation as an expert housebreaker. He did the trick and the door was opened. They then proceeded with the toilet of the lion, which was no nice affair. The prince arrived on the morrow and accorded the lion a hasty glance. He did not know the trouble that had been taken to make the colossus presentable.--Le Cri de Paris.

Bound to Become Great.

Sir William Foster, late physician to the house of commons, tells a good story about Joseph Chamberlain in the early days when they were both members of a local debating society in Birmingham. Mr. Chamberlain at this embryonic period would prepare his speech carefully beforehand, write it out, commit to memory and deliver it without the aid of notes.

Once in the midst of his oration he came to a full stop. He calmly began again; but again broke down at the same place. This time, however, he coolly put his hand into his coat-tails pocket, slowly turned over the leaves and then went on again without the slightest discomposure. "Such a man," adds Sir Walter, "was bound to become

But whether or not proper thought was given to this important matter at the proper time, seed time forces us to think now of the new year. Much of the success of the year will depend upon the proper seeding of fields and the germinating of the seeds sown.

In planting, there are two purposes achieved. The first is securing a good, even stand of plants; the second uniform quality. It costs as much to till a crop of half a stand or less as it does a full stand. Each vacant hill represents a clear loss. So if fields are to produce to their capacity there must be no vacant hills. In this way, and ing the required time to elapse for this way only, can we perpetuate its germination, to expose the seeds nature to our climate, all essential germinating power of the seeds and factors in the growth of profitable their prepotency for giving a vigorous root system, will do. Seeds low in germinating percentage or showing a weak root system should be discarded. These desired qualities can reasonbly be expected only from well matured, well formed, healthy seed.

The second requisite for a good stand is a good seed bed. The man who broke his land as deeply as its nature permitted early last fall, perto be aimed at, or two ends to be mitting as much vegetable matter as possible to decay in it, and has a reasonable amount of moisture in it. is securing strong, vigorous plants of has but to disk and harrow it until the surface three or four inches are pulverized and the particles of the soil rendered so fine that they can come into close contact with the seed, to have an ideal seed bed. The man who eschew deep plowing late but should

The third factor to be considered is the time and method of planting. germination and probability of frost destroying young plants has reasonably passed.

There is a great diversity of opinion a bout the best method of planting, but as a general rule it is best on poorly drained soils and soils inclined to be cold to use the ridge method; while on warm, well drained soils, such as most Southwest Texas soils are, the level system is to be preferred. In plan ting corn, it is preferable to plant corn considerably below the surface, provided a good seed bed of soil can be secured. The complaint sometimes heard that corn planted in the water-furrow is slow to germinate and backward about growing is doubtless due to dropping the seed into poorly prepared beds too close to a cold, hard, unbroken subsoil, which is to be avoided.

If there is ample moisture in the soil the seeds should be covered lightly. In fact, any method of covering that might cause crusting of the moist surface must be avoided. But where the soil is somewhat dry, the seeds should be planted well down in the moist soil and some method of cover ing that will firm the surface and press the soil particles close up around the seeds, should be employed. In planting grains this deep planting and firming the soil not only insures better germination but affords some protection against the pulling of it up by larks and black birds after the plants have grown above the ground.

The devastation by birds is so great in some sections sometimes as to prove a serious menace to corn crops at this stage of their growth. At other times and places, the destruction of the germinating seeds by wire worms is a cause of poor stands. In fact, I have known would-be defenders of birds to try to justify the destruction of our grain on the plea that they were in search of the worm rather than the grain. Whether or not he is to be credited with this birds must go, and a shot-gun in the assure a useful feature of "preparedrate wing-shots among the future guardians of our Republic.

As prevention is always better than cure, it is claimed that by taking a enough kerosene oil with it to thin it, preparation, and applying it to your the grain together, it will act as a worms and the birds without in any way injuring the vitality of the seeds. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Commissioners' Court has been in session this week and is examining the County's annual report of finances. As the report consists of quite an array of figures that must be compared, counted and verified the task is a momentous one and has occupied the court's time practically all week.

The Legislature has changed the 38th Judicial District by taking Edwards County out of the District, thus leaving it one county smaller than formerly. The dates for holdingcourt in the various counties have also been changed, and instead of opening at the usual time the Medina County term will not begin until May 14th.

We learn from County Demonstrator T. N. Lee that there is some blacg-leg prevalent among the cattle in portions of the county. Stockmen should watch for symptoms of this disease among their cattle, and call in Mr. Lee's assistance to vacinate against it. Safety lies only in prevention of this disease, as no cure has been discovered for it.

A sporadic case of small pox was discovered on one of the Odem, farms about five miles below Hondo, the first of the week. The patient, a Mexican tenant, is isolated and is making fair progress towards recovery.
